The process of Ukraine's European integration is very difficult and multi-political. Nevertheless our country could be a worthy member of the European Union. Multiple new opportunities in attainment of economical, scientific, technological and jurisprudential progress will be opened when Ukraine enters the E.

The fact that Ukraine is hosting the great European sport festival «EURO-2012» is considered the most important strategic task of world's intergovernmental relations for realizing future aims. If our goal is to succeed, then we have to provide safety and order for guests during the event [1; p.2].

As for today, there is no official research investigating the legal regulation of the «EURO-2012» organization in Ukrainian law-scientific area. So we assume that investigation of this issue is necessary and will be beneficial.

According to the Ukrainian Law «On the features of ensuring public order and public safety during preparation and conduction of football matches» (st.1), the public security is safety of the core interests of the society concentrated in its virtues from any natural or artificial threats during the football matches preparation and conduction, also elimination any harm that might be done by any of these dangerous sources.

In terms of large-scale event (about 600.000 participants), the risk of dangerous situations may arise in [3]:

1. Terrorists and people connected with armed or racist conflicts entrance into the territory of Ukraine. As the matter of fact, many radical groups carried out dangerous activities during the football matches in Ukraine. If we want to resolve this problem, we should strengthen the checkpoint on the state border.

2. Probability of the intensive traffic across the state border. This problem can be solved by intensification of measures aimed to provide safety during the state border crossing.

3. Increasing usage of public transportation.

4. Appearance of the opportunities of holding mass political and public actions in a crowded location.

State politics should be based on the following principles:

- to create and provide friendly public communication for all viewers from all nations and people using the best European rules of etiquette;

- to carry out prevention of crimes (could be possible to make offenses like robbery, theft, fraud, forgery (certificates, passports, money, tickets), drug trafficking and drug abuse, violent acts of racial, religious or political dangerous actions, kidnapping, terrorism, and others);

- humanization activity of control and law enforcement agencies (including communicational restraint and usage of civil guards or supervisors (stewards) directly on stadiums instead of military forces) [1; p.2-3];

- providing safety for vehicles (including extensive involvement of public authorities on the roads: State Patrol Service, State Public Service, State Vehicle Inspection etc.):

- smooth, high-quality and fast medical help;

- creation of large infrastructure and service centers for visitors at the highest European level.

The effective fulfillment of these tasks includes preparation security and public service during the final part of competition [4]. So for the safety's sake the competence of those who organize and provide safety has to be determined, with application of foreign experience and usage of international cooperation in the preparation and conduction of sport events [1; p.2-3].

The effectiveness of organization of safety and security should be in a comprehensive agreement with law, management and executive realization in order to guarantee the "EURO 2012" success in Ukraine.
